Let's talk about exercise and arthritis...Exercise can help keep your joints moving and keep the muscles around your joints strong. It can also keep your bone and cartilage tissue strong and healthy, and improve your ability to do daily activities. Along with medicine and rest, when your joints aren't swollen, regular exercise can help keep them in working order so you can continue participating in your daily activities. It also may help prevent more joint damage. Do you have a question? Don't hesitate to ask your Live Well Pharmacist.
